How Does Neurofeedback Work?

Mind Source Solutions: Connecting patients and neurofeedback providers.

According to a recent federal study, 38 percent of American adults and nearly 12 percent of American children have tried some form of alternative medicine for various ailments including ADHD, Depression, and Traumatic Brain Injury. Over the last thirty years several alternative therapies, neurofeedback (also referred to as EEG biofeedback) and hypnosis in particular, have had significant success in treating these brain disorders and others. But all too often patients have found connecting with ethical, experienced providers who practice these disciplines can be challenging. Mind Source Solutions (MSS) was created to solve this dilemma.

MSS educates patients and their families about complex conditions. MSS has created a series of public information sites on these conditions. All of these sites offer well-researched and comprehensive articles on the symptoms, causes, and treatment options for these conditions including alternative therapies.

We also help site visitors find alternative care providers practicing in their area. Each of these informational sites also includes a list of qualified practitioners of neurofeedback, hypnosis, and other forms of alternative care throughout the country. Site visitors can open the tab marked "Providers," key in their zip code in the search box provided, and click. The names, contact information, and Web site URLs of alternative care providers closest to their zip code will instantly appear. Nothing could be simpler, quicker, or more convenient to use.

Client: Mind Source Solutions

Blog: Bi-weekly publication on topics appropriate for the site – written from 2011 – 2013.

Topics: Blog dealt with developments in neurofeedback and new discoveries about the conditions it treats. I researched all the topics, interviewed experts on the topics and also interviewed and profiled new listing providers who had signed up for service.

Results: Blog got positive responses from the providers but until the site fully launches it will be hard to judge its effectiveness.
